President's Palette

Did you know that BWS has a Facebook page? It is a great way to promote art for BWS. First a little Facebook basics for those who are new to it or don't use it much.

After registering to use the site, users can create a user profile indicating their name, occupation, schools attended and so on. Users can add other users as "friends", exchange messages, post status updates and digital photos, share digital videos and links, use various software applications ("apps"), and receive notifications when others update their profiles or make posts. Additionally, users may join common-interest user groups organized by workplace, school, hobbies or other topics, and categorize their friends into lists such as "People From Work" or "Close Friends".

"Like" button- The "like" button is a social networking feature, allowing users to express their appreciation of content such as status updates, comments, photos, and advertisements.

Facebook "fan"- A Facebook fan is a user who "likes" a particular page. If user chooses to "like" a page, they are then able to get updates from that page's administrator through status updates, link posts, and event invitations. Fans display lists of pages they have "liked" on their profile.

Following- In 2011, Facebook added the ability for users to provide a "Subscribe" button on their page, which allows users to subscribe to public postings by the user without needing to add him or her as a friend. In 2012, Facebook announced that the Subscribe button would be re-labeled as a "Follow" button—making it more similar to other social networks with similar functions.

Facebook Pages

Like a friend's profile, Facebook Pages enable public figures, businesses, organizations and other entities to create an authentic and public presence on Facebook. Unlike your profile, Facebook Pages are visible to everyone on the internet by default. You, and every person on Facebook, can connect with these Pages by becoming a fan and then receive their updates in your News Feed and interact with them.

For example, an avid watcher of the American TV show "Lost" on ABC can connect with the official Facebook Page for "Lost" and thus keep up on the latest episodes and other information directly from the people behind it.

Facebook Groups

While Pages were designed to be the official profiles for entities, such as celebrities, brands or businesses, Facebook Groups are the place for small group communication and for people to share their common interests and express their opinion. Groups allow people to come together around a common cause, issue or activity to organize, express objectives, discuss issues, post photos and share related content.

A group can be publicly available for anyone to join, require administrator approval for members to join or keep it private and by invitation only. Like with Pages, new posts by a group are included in the News Feeds of its members and members can interact and share with one another from the group.

Groups range widely, from members of a church group or athletic team organizing activities to serious topics on politics and world events or even more lighthearted themes.

For example, just as a fan of the official Page for the show "Lost," they can also be a member of groups created by other fans. The "Lost" groups offer a way to interact with a community of people and discuss the latest theories around what is happening on the show—from what the "smoke monster" is to how it will all end.

Together, Pages and Groups bring even more ways for you to stay connected on Facebook.

So with these basic in mind, here is what BWS members can do.

First off, be sure to "like" the Baltimore Watercolor Society page, and also join our Baltimore Watercolor Society group (which is separate). You can post your new work, shows, workshops, awards, sales, and other member news to our page and we will share it with all of the BWS followers. Our page is public, meaning that anyone can see it. Anyone can comment or post a message on our wall. Our group is private, meaning that only BWS members can join and post or comment. Keeping up with BWS on Facebook is the fastest way to get the latest news about the Society, your fellow members, art events, and other items that might interest you. It's also an easy and efficient way for you to share your news, events, and art with BWS and our followers.

There is more to know about Facebook for BWS members, so look for more tips in an upcoming issue of "Highlights" from Annie Stack, our Social Media chair.

BWS Annual Dinner

Wednesday, May 3, 2017

Don't miss Victoria Wyeth!

Plan to attend our Annual Dinner on Wednesday, May 3, 2017 at Turf Valley. Enjoy spending time with fellow artists and hear Victoria Wyeth speak! We loved her in 2013! Now, she is planning a new and fabulous program for us featuring another member of her famous family, Jamie Wyeth, her uncle. She will share personal memories, family stories, and insights gained through years of conversations with her uncle about his work in watercolor and in oil.

Dinner will be a three entrée buffet in the beautiful and spacious Wedgewood room at Turf Valley. Doors will open at 6:30pm. The cost is just $49 each. A cash bar will be available.

Don't be left out. Go to bws.wildapricot.org. Registration closes April 17 or when available seating is filled. (Refunds are only available before April 17). Call Karen Schuster at 410-531-5768 with any questions.

If you prefer not to pay online, checks should be made out to BWS and sent to:

Comments from guest judge Walt Bartman:

www.yellowbarnstudio.com/bartman.htm

“My choices for the awards were based on certain criteria. Most importantly is the freshness of thought. For me, a painting is a collection of the artist’s thoughts. As a plant grows, so does a painting. The artist is the architect of the idea. That idea communicates the artist’s intentions. Picasso once said, ‘If you want to know what is in the artist mind, watch the artist’s hand.’ For me, a painting is a record of thoughts. Some artists work with a preconceived idea, others do not. Some artists work intuitively and others synthesize their ideas. Some thoughts are totally calculated, some are mathematical, and some are random. Gauguin once said, ‘a painting is an art form that does not require memory to appreciate it, because the beginning and end are there all at once.’ I agree that a painting is a collection of the artist’s thoughts.

I must admit, I am biased when it comes to the photo as a source. Artists who work from it can become addicted, losing their own control and merely copying a picture. I have seen too many paintings lately whose purpose is to illustrate the photo. Skillfull to say the least but lacking in their own personal vision. Disguising it with technique.

Perhaps the most important artistic element that I look for in a work of art is the ‘poetry of vision,’ whether the work possesses something profound and magical. I would call it the essence. It needs to be felt in a way that seems a natural vision. Pissarro summed it up when he said, ‘Paint your temperament.’

I chose these paintings listed below because they exhibited what I feel some of the elements above.”

First Place: Lois Wolford, “Gough Street” (below) I was very impressed by this painting. It exhibited a “freshness” that seemed to be the most natural of all the paintings. It was interesting for its color and composition. I especially felt the geometric patterns of light and shade, similar to Edward Hopper.

Second Place: Deb Cohan, “Waiting” I was attracted to the design, especially the color palette. It is a strong design, and is very unique. Emotionally, it is a strong piece. It felt “eerie.”

Third Place: Angela Lacy, “My Sanctuary” Masterfully handled. Interesting because of the handling of both the medium and color. It was an appropriate palette for the subject. Compositionally, the scale relationships and subject made it very interesting. The curved line was very unique and reminiscence of Lautrec in its use of line for feeling.

Honorable Mention: Elizabeth Burin, “Bridge Walk” A very interesting painting. Abstractly interesting due to the bridge over our heads. I felt as if I was part of being in the painting.

Honorable Mention: Marta Legeckis, “Gothic Reds” Accuracy is the strongest element in this painting. It is masterfully drawn.

Honorable Mention: Diane Dunn, “Stripes and Roses” The most interpretative work. Strongly confident. Loosely painted. You can feel the “dance” of the brush. The color works with the line.
