Word from the Board

This handsome exhibition is possible only with the generous support of our volunteers and donors. We thank CCBC Catonsville for publicizing the exhibition. We thank our tireless volunteers who attend to the legion of details. We thank our vendors, our fellow art organizations, and our individual donors who support us with the awards. And lastly, we thank our artists whose talent and inspiration provide the art.

About the Baltimore Watercolor Society

Founded in 1885, the Baltimore Watercolor Society is the third oldest organization in the country devoted to the use of watercolor as a painting medium. Since its founding, numerous artists of national reputation have been associated with the Society as members, exhibitors and jurors.

The purpose of the Society is to encourage cultural interest in the development of professional quality, original works of art, executed in aqueous media.

The Society offers its Signature Artist Members and Associate Artist Members opportunities to exhibit in local and regional shows, frequent newsletters, workshops, lectures and demonstrations, and trips to major exhibitions.

The Baltimore Watercolor Society is a 501(C3) non-profit charitable organization, incorporated in the State of Maryland.

Juror's Statement

It was indeed an honor to be invited to select the paintings and awards for the 2022 Mid-Atlantic Regional Watercolor Exhibition. The quality and variety of the work presented was a joy to behold. I wasn't able to include all the work that I would have liked because of size restrictions for hanging, but I certainly would have included more work. Also, many of the artists that entered two pieces presented me with a real challenge as to which piece was the stronger work. Many of those paintings are also exceptional. Congratulations to all the winning artists! Your work stood out amongst a fine group of paintings.

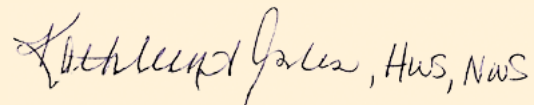

When selecting paintings I first look for a good composition supported by a strong value pattern and color unity. If the work is realistic, I look for competent drawing skills. I ask myself whether or not the painting makes sense. Are things drawn to scale? Do I know what the artist is saying? Oftentimes I find that too many objects have been added to complicate and confuse the viewer. Simple design is the often best route to follow unless you are a very experienced painter. My tips for making your piece stand out are to use eye catching pattern and/or storytelling, through the objects in your work. If your work wasn't included in the show this time please don't be discouraged. If I had kept all the rejections notices I have received over the years, they would fill an entire desk drawer. I still get my share of rejections. Instead of taking it personally, I have learned to look at it differently. I understand there were just other pieces that were more appealing to the judge. I also have found that rejection has helped me grow. Getting an honest critique of rejected work can provide you with new insights. Those insights can then motivate and help you to move forward with new goals... you can't lose unless you quit!

Working on our art can be such a wonderful escape from the negativity around us. We are essentially creating our own world. Artists are never bored because we are always creating. I hope that you all continue to grow and that your work brings joy into your lives.

All the best,

Kathleen Giles, AWS, NWS

Word from the Mid-Atlantic Chair

Another crazy year for the exhibit! New gallery. New rules for submitting, delivering and visiting. New team for chairing the exhibit. New version of the BWS website.

Stacy Lund Levy, Susan Bradley and I have put in many hours trying to make this exhibit as wonderful as the ones in past. The paintings are amazing. Our juror was a delight. Our awards team (Janet Arsenault and Janet Freeman) was outstanding. The computer technical skills of April Rimpo and Bob Coe get a special shout-out. Brenda Kidera has once again worked her magic for the catalog. And the legion of volunteers who came together to make this work all deserve the thanks from our entire artist community.

It is difficult to predict what 2023 will bring, but I'm confident the challenges will be met, and the art will continue to thrill and delight.

Sharon Green
